Qatar 2022 Bid Announces Sponsorship of Lambie Nairn

London, 5 Oct – The Qatar 2022 Bid Committee today announced the sponsorship and support of leading international brand agency Lambie Nairn at a signing ceremony held in London. Lambie Nairn is now the Official Supplier and Official Brand Agency of the Qatar 2022 Bid.

Qatar 2022 Bid Communications Director Nasser Al Khater said he was happy to welcome Lambie Nairn as the Bid's latest sponsor and praised their services and quality of work for the bid. "Lambie Nairn is a world-class branding and design company, and we are delighted to have them on board," he said. "This shows that our bid continues to attract global support and attention, and we hope to keep the momentum going, with the help of our sponsors, all the way through December 2nd"

At the signing ceremony, Lambie Nairn CEO Christian Schroeder said "Working with the bid team and their ambitious plans for 2022 continues to be an exciting journey, and builds upon our experience in the Sport industry, and specifically football-obsessed Qatar. We take great pride in our status as an official supplier and firmly believe Qatar deserves to have its football dream realized."

FIFA will award the 2018 and 2022 World Cups on December 2 in Zurich.

Qatar 2022 Reveals Iconic Lusail Stadium

86,250-seat stadium in the heart of New Lusail City would host opening and final matches

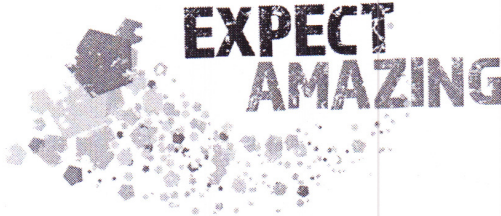

London, 6 October – The Qatar 2022 Bid Committee today unveiled detailed plans for the iconic Lusail Stadium at a major international football conference, Leaders in Football, held at Chelsea FC in London. With a capacity in excess of 86,000 and surrounded by water– the stadium would host the World Cup Opening Match and Final if Qatar wins the rights to stage the 2022 FIFA World Cup.

To be built in the Al-Daayen section of Lusail City, a new development north of Doha, the stadium is one of 12 that form Qatar's 2022 FIFA World Cup hosting concept. All are within an hour of central Doha enabling fans to see at least two games in a day. The Lusail Stadium is the final stadium to be unveiled by Qatar 2022.

The stadium, designed by world-renowned architects Foster & Partners, reflects various elements of Qatari heritage including the traditional dhow sail, and will serve as a model for future sports stadiums throughout the region. Its design includes a fully retractable roof and the same environmentally friendly, solar cooling technologies that will ensure all of Qatar's 12 open-air stadiums are cooled to around 27 Degrees Centigrade. Situated on an east-west orientation, the stadium will have shade across the entire pitch and will have the world's largest cable-net roof.

H.E. Sheikh Mohammed bin Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani, Chairman of the Qatar 2022 Bid, said: "The Iconic Lusail Stadium will serve as the perfect venue for the opening and final matches of the World Cup. The stadium will inspire a new generation of regional and international sports venues, incorporating environmentally friendly cooling technologies to ensure the ideal conditions for players and spectators alike. The design of the stadium provides fans with optimum views of the action in a cool and comfortable setting. Its beauty and ambition represent the pride and enthusiasm that we have displayed in our bid thus far and will continue to display until the day FIFA awards the 2022 World Cup and beyond."

Like all of Qatar's proposed stadiums, the Lusail Stadium will have its own metro station and be linked with major Qatar highways and bus routes, ensuring easy and seamless access for fans. With flexibility at its core, the stadium will be able to adapt to a wide variety of future sporting, cultural and social events in Qatar after 2022.

QATAR 2022 CELEBRATES THE NUMBER 22

Doha, Qatar – Today the Qatar 2022 Bid Committee announced its enthusiasm for the number 22, which holds potent symbolic value for the bid's goals and ambitions for the entire Arab region. In particular, the bid recognizes all the ways in which this number symbolically represents the underlying principles which drive the country's world cup candidacy.

- The 2022 FIFA World Cup will be the 22nd version of the tournament, the first having been hosted in Uruguay in 1930.
- The official starting arrangement for a football match consists of 22 players on the pitch.
- The Arab League, which represents the interests of the Arab community from North Africa to Asia, consists of 22 member states, of which Qatar is one. This underscores the extent to which Qatar's World Cup bid is very much a bid on behalf of the entire region.
- Qatar's "Generation Amazing" Football Development program selected 22 youth ambassadors from Nepal, Pakistan, Syria and Lebanon, who travelled to the World Cup in South Africa this past month as part of Qatar's desire to use football to promote a sustainable social legacy around the globe.

QATAR 2022 AND FIFA SIGN HOST AGREEMENT FOR 2022 WORLD CUP

Press Conference in Doha Officially Confers 2022 Hosting Rights to Qatar

DOHA, 6 January, 2010: Qatar 2022 Bid Committee Chairman Sheikh Mohammed Bin Khalifa Al Thani joined FIFA President Sepp Blatter today at a Press Conference and Official Signing Ceremony in Doha to commemorate the awarding of the 2022 World Cup to the State of Qatar and formally begin the process of preparing the country to host the tournament. The Press Conference was held at the Four Seasons Hotel in Doha.

Following FIFA's historic decision on December 2nd to bring the World Cup to the Middle East for the first time, the Host Signing Agreement Ceremony is the next official step forward for Qatar and FIFA as they plan for the 2022 tournament. FIFA President Sepp Blatter heralded the signing ceremony as the beginning of an exciting time for football and for the Middle East.

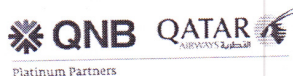

"Today represents an exciting step forward for the world's game, now set to chart new territory, to expose a new generation of Middle Easterners to football, and to help build bridges between east and west," FIFA President Sepp Blatter said. "FIFA is confident it has made the right decision and we look forward to working with Qatar in the years ahead as they set out to make history."

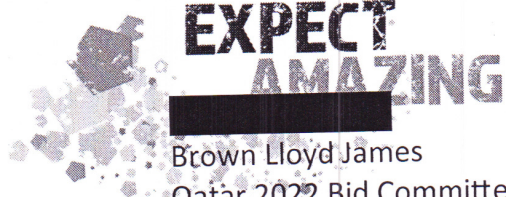

H.E. Sheikh Mohammed Al Thani, speaking on behalf of the bid committee, said that the country and the region were honored by FIFA's decision and would work diligently in the months and years ahead to ensure the highest-quality World Cup in 2022. "We thank FIFA for their confidence in us and for making the courageous decision to open up new markets and to expand the game to new lands," he said. "Our bid leaders and our people have had sufficient time to celebrate our country's victory in earning the hosting rights, but we know the real work begins now and we do not have a moment to lose."

Efforts have already begun to implement Qatar's ambitious plans for the World Cup, including the construction of new, environmentally-friendly stadiums and cooling technologies, along with infrastructure and transportation projects in line with Qatar's 2030 National Vision.

Comité Français pour un Iran Démocratique

As US Prepares to Announce Position on Iranian Resistance, Tens of Thousands Set to Rally in Paris

Prominent Americans to Call for Protection of Residents of Camp Ashraf, Lifting of "Terror" Designation

On Saturday, June 18 a rally estimated to be in the tens of thousands, including hundreds of dignitaries from five continents, will rally at the Parc des Expositions de Paris-Nord-Villepinte to call for a permanent solution to Camp Ashraf—the besieged, Iraq-based home for thousands of members of the Iranian opposition and their families. Among the notable participants will be former New York City Mayor Rudy Giuliani, former President, Polish "Solidarity" Movement Leader, and Nobel Peace Prize winner Lech Walesa, former US Attorney General Michael Mukasey, son of late Senator Ted Kennedy and former US Congressman Patrick Kennedy, former US Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge and several sitting Members of the US Congress, parliamentary delegations from various EU member states and Arab countries and many senior former counter-terrorism, diplomatic and intelligence officials from the Obama, Bush and Clinton administrations who will call for urgent measures by the UN, US and EU to protect Ashraf residents.

The timing of the event is urgent and propitious: on April 8, the latest in a series of massacres in Camp Ashraf, at the hands of Iraqi soldiers, killed 35 unarmed men and women and injured more than 350. Protecting the residents of Camp Ashraf requires an immediate change in their status. Following a recent US District Court ruling, the US State Department is compelled to reevaluate in the coming weeks the standing of members of the Iranian opposition—all of whom were classified as "terrorists" at the behest of the Iranian regime since 1997. According to Wikileaks, the Iraqi Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki, in a meeting with Charge d'Affaires of U.S. embassy in Baghdad on March 23, 2009, "expressed some frustration and questioned why the government of Iraq had to act so responsibly towards a organization determined to be a terrorist group by both Iraq and the U.S."

Years ago, the residents of Camp Ashraf renounced violence, surrendered their arms, dedicated themselves to democratic change in Iran, and provided valuable intelligence to democratic allies across the world about Iran's nuclear program, human rights violations, and export of fundamentalism.

The 18 June event will culminate in a proposal to the US President, UN Secretary General, and the EU High Representative offering a long-term and peaceful solution to Ashraf crisis. They will call for an end to any appeasement of the clerical regime, and for adoption of a policy of regime change and recognition of the Iranian Resistance.

Background information:

On April 8, on the orders of Prime Minister Nouri-al-Maliki and at the behest of the Iranian regime, Iraqi forces massacred Ashraf residents, killing 35 residents, and wounding 350. The Iraqi military forces are still inside Ashraf. One-third of the camp is currently under Iraqi military occupation.

The gathering on June 18, takes place eight years after the raid on the headquarters of the National Council of Resistance of Iran on June 17, 2003. Recently, the French judges officially annulled terror charges against officials and members of the Iranian Resistance and recognized the legitimacy of resisting against ruling dictatorship in Iran. A majority of members of the French National Assembly recognize the National Council of Resistance of Iran.

HIS HIGHNESS SHEIKH HAMAD BIN KHALIFA AL-THANI, AMIR OF QATAR, VISITS AMERICA'S GULF COAST TO ASSESS PROGRESS OF LONG-TERM RELIEF EFFORT

$100 million Qatar Katrina Fund aims for "multiplier effect" in health, education, community and job development

Doha, Qatar: XX April, 2008: His Highness Sheikh Hamad bin Khalifa Al-Thani, Amir of Qatar, is making a private visit to the United States' Gulf Coast region April 29-30 to view firsthand the progress of the Qatar Katrina Fund, a $100 million gift from the people of Qatar to families and individuals affected by Hurricane Katrina.

The Qatar Katrina Fund, first announced in September 2005, was developed to provide immediate financial assistance in support of long term goals such health care, housing, and education for those who were most hurt the most by the storm. The entire fund has been dispersed directly to organizations involved in rebuilding hospitals, emergency services, educational facilities, places of worship and houses.

Qatar, a small independent state in the Arabian Gulf that is among the world's leading energy producers, is a longstanding military, educational, and commercial ally of the United States. Many U.S. educational and cultural institutions have branch campuses in Qatar, and the country is also host to the U.S. military's Central Command for operations in Iraq.

The various grants made by the Qatar Katrina Fund were distributed in three phases to the victims in the hardest hit areas of Mississippi and Louisiana. The Fund's first phase of donations, totaling more than $61 million, was announced on May 2, 2006. The second phase, representing $33 million in gifts was announced on September 8, 2006 commemorating the one-year anniversary of the hurricane. The remaining $5.6 million was dispersed on January 3, 2008.

During his private tour of the region, His Highness is scheduled to meet with grant recipients, local, state and federal government officials involved in Katrina recovery and former President George H.W. Bush, co-chair of the Bush-Clinton Katrina Fund.

ABOUT THE STATE OF QATAR

Qatar is an independent state in the Southern Arabian Gulf surrounded by Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates and Iran. It is governed by Sheikh Hamad bin Khalifa Al-Thani, who became the new Emir of the State of Qatar on June 26, 1995, continuing the rule of the Al-Thani family that began nearly two centuries ago. The government is forward-thinking with a strong focus on education, cultural preservation, and women's rights. Qatar is one of the most active economies in the Middle East, driven by its hydrocarbon wealth and its related industry. The state also has a burgeoning tourism industry, with multiple attractions and first-class hotels.

750 MILLION WIDOWS AND CHILDREN AT RISK

At UN Headquarters, First-Ever International Widows Day Panel to Alert World on the Plight of Widows

WHAT: On June 23, 2011, the world will mark the first International Widows Day with a panel discussion and conference at the United Nations in New York. The event will bring together widows, advocates, diplomats, UN officials, NGOs and other dignitaries to address the plight of hundreds of millions of widows and their children who live as marginalized individuals, deprived of rights and under conditions of social and economic hardship. Speakers will address the issues of poverty, discrimination, and the infringement on human rights that widows face in countries around the world. Improving the lives of widows and their children is also central to realizing the United Nations' Millennium Development Goals and achieving social and economic justice and empowerment for women.

International Widows Day:

To give special recognition to the situation of widow's across all regions, the United Nations General Assembly on 21 December 2010 adopted, at the initiative of the Gabonese Republic, Resolution 65/189 and declared 23 June as International Widow's Day. Adopted by consensus, the resolution had the joint sponsorship of 56 countries. The rare designation of an international day recognizing widows by the UN follows independent verification of shocking levels of violence and deprivation faced by the 245 million widows and more than 500 million of their children worldwide.

Nearly 60 million widows live in extreme poverty where basic needs go unmet. Widows and their children disproportionately suffer from malnutrition, poor health and physical insecurity, putting widows at greater risk for rape, HIV/AIDS and domestic violence. Up until now, widows have been a disadvantaged class of peoples who have not been recognized as such. International Widows Day is the first step in raising awareness for this important cause and seeks to bring about greater dignity and human rights for widows the world over.

Sheikh Mohammed Al Thani, speaking on behalf of the bid committee, said that the country and the region were honored by FIFA's decision and would work diligently in the months and years ahead to ensure the highest-quality World Cup in 2022. "We thank FIFA for their confidence in us and for making the courageous decision to open up new markets and to expand the game to new lands," he said. "Our bid leaders and our people have had sufficient time to celebrate our country's victory in earning the hosting rights, but we know the real work begins now and we do not have a moment to lose."

Efforts have already begun to implement Qatar's ambitious plans for the World Cup, including the construction of new, environmentally-friendly stadiums and cooling technologies, along with infrastructure and transportation projects in line with Qatar's 2030 National Vision.

Dear [NAME],

It is my pleasure to invite you to a special event to mark the opening of a groundbreaking new educational facility in Doha, Qatar, the Shafallah Center for Children with Special Needs. The Shafallah Center is a first-of-its-kind facility in the Arab and Muslim world, treating and teaching from birth children who have learning or physical handicaps with state-of-the-art technologies, cutting-edge therapies and first-class faculty and counselors.

To celebrate the opening of the center, Shafallah will host an inaugural International Dialogue on Children with Special Needs in Doha, May 8th-9th, 2006. This event is hosted in association with Newsweek Magazine. The International Dialogue on Children with Special Needs will gather top educators, policymakers and others for broad and provocative discussion of the leading trends in education and therapy for children with special needs, from a global perspective. We will have the honor of welcoming UK First Lady Cherie Blair, who will deliver keynote remarks at the event, and famed tenor Andrea Bocelli (TBC), long-time advocate of children's causes, who will give a special performance.

Our efforts in Qatar to develop world-class educational facilities have spanned higher education—with Weill-Cornell Medical School, Georgetown School of Foreign Service and others locating full branch campuses here—to elementary education reform through a project with RAND Corporation. If education is to be the foundation of our collective future, no child can be left behind. That's why I have supported the development of the Shafallah Center.

Participation in this conference is complimentary and is by invitation only. I hope that you will join me and your peers and friends in this May in Doha and participate in this important event in the educational development of our region. Please visit our website where you will find details on the conference. www.shafallah.org.qa/conference

QATAR TO OPEN LANDMARK SPECIAL NEEDS FACILITY

Gulf State Continues its March Towards Modern Education For All; International Forum 8-9 May

Doha, QATAR: On May 8, the State of Qatar will open a comprehensive facility to teach and treat children with physical and learning disabilities, adding to the sweeping modernization of the Gulf State's educational system.

The Shafallah Center for Children with Special Needs, a first-of-its-kind facility in the Arab and Muslim world, will offer state-of-the-art technologies, including an on-site Genetic Research Centre, cutting-edge therapies and first-class faculty and counselors.

The Shafallah Center, under the patronage of Her Highness Sheikha Mozah bint Nasser al Misnad, wife of His Highness the Emir of Qatar, will celebrate its opening by holding an International Forum on Children With Special Needs on May 8-9, 2006 in Doha, Qatar. The Forum will feature keynote speaker Mrs. Cherie Booth QC, spouse of the Rt. Hon. Tony Blair MP; President of Barnardo's and Patron for Education, SCOPE.

Qatar has in recent years established full branches of several major U.S. universities and reformed its K-12 public schools based on American models. The Shafallah Center is the next step in a broad vision for regional educational leadership that Qatar has made the centerpiece of its national development strategy.

The International Forum, which is open to the media, will gather top educators, policymakers and experts from around the world, offering a global perspective on the latest ideas and trends in the educational development of children with special needs. HH Sheikha Mozah will participate in the conference.

Featured panel topics to be discussed at the Forum include “How the Study of Genetics Can Contribute Positively to the Future of Children with Special Needs”; “Inclusion for All Children with Disabilities?”; “Innovative Approaches: Therapies Associated with Music, Theatre and the Creative Arts”; and “Parent, Family and Community Initiatives”.

The Shafallah Center for Children with Special Needs was established at the behest of H.H. Sheikha Mozah bint Nasser al Misnad so that Qatari society could provide comprehensive services to children with disabilities. The National Committee for Special Needs, under the chairmanship of Dr. Ghaliah Mohd Al-Thani, and with the expertise of highly specialized physicians and other specialists, chartered the establishment of a “center of excellence”. The Center is a non-profit, private institution, serving as a model for the provision of special education, therapeutic, and health care support services for children with disabilities from birth to age 21. www.shafallah.org.qa previously experienced marginalization. Such inclusion is a cogent way to promote ability. The implications globally for the inclusion of students with intellectual disabilities within university settings will be touched on. Also within the presentation, there will be a description of how the funding of the NIID is part of the legacy of the Special Olympics World Games that were held in Ireland in 2003.

Symposium: The Special Olympics – Building Communities of Acceptance and Inclusion Worldwide

Time: 14:15 – 15:15

Location: Theater

Participants: Her Excellency Vivian Fernández de Torrijos, First Lady of the Republic of Panama
Ayman Abdel Wahab, Regional Managing Director, Special Olympics International
Hareb Ahmed Al Jasmy, Special Olympics Global Messenger, Special Olympics United Arab Emirates

Leadership for Creating Inclusive Societies

Abstract: Leaders in all sectors are essential partners in the struggle to advance the rights and opportunities for people with disabilities, including 200 million people with intellectual disability (ID). People with ID and their families continue to suffer and experience isolation, stigma, and deprivation in all cultures on a broad scale. As First Lady of Panama and a member of the Special Olympics International Board of Directors, one of Her Excellency's highest priorities is to speak out for and work to support people with intellectual disabilities and their families. Special Olympics, through sports programming and other supporting initiatives, is changing lives across the world for people with ID and those without. SOI's emergence as a major policy leader for people with ID on a global level suggests that even greater gains are possible.

Special Olympics: Sport and So Much More

Abstract: Special Olympics (SO) is a global movement serving over 2.5 million athletes in more than 160 countries on a daily basis. SO is widely recognized for the large-scale, spectacular World Games that it puts on every two years, but if this were the only view that one had of this movement, one would be missing the real magic and power of SO. SO has demonstrated, through poignant life stories, testimonials, and examples how it can change lives for athletes, families, and volunteers. More recently, research findings have demonstrated the real impact of Special Olympics programs in changing opportunities for people with ID, changing family expectations and beliefs, and changing societal understanding, acceptance of and support for people with ID. In the Middle East and North Africa Region of SO, these positive effects are being realized every day.

Carrying the Torch for Special Olympics Every Day

Abstract:

This presentation, from the perspective of a Special Olympics athlete, will show how SO athletes contribute in ways beyond their athletic abilities, and in doing so are making a difference in the world. The presentation will show first-hand how the Special Olympics provide opportunity, training, encouragement, recognition, and a place of welcome for people with ID and their families. At SO, athletes can compete, set goals, risk failure, and celebrate achievement with friends, teammates, family, and the community. The athlete's voice is also one of the most powerful tools of the SO movement, and the presentation will explore how and why SO athletes so often volunteer to actively spread the SO message to individuals and crowds of thousands.

Expositions

MONDAY, APRIL 21

12:10 – 13:30

Olympians: Projected Images, United States

Ana Busto, Artist

Projected images and video depicting images of athletes with disabilities will be shown at this exhibit. Sports have played an important part in the integration of the disabled. Politically, though, they still are marginalized. This exhibit intends to bring their images to our daily visual landscape and make their presence common. The artist foresees a group of disabled people who, with the aid of artifice, will become cyborgs -- models of physical and mental strength -- who will be looked at as role models.

Sport and Development Disabled Volleyball, Cambodia

Neil Wilford, Cambodian National Disabled Volleyball League (CNVLD)

Along with recognition by the United Nations as "Best Practices -- Sport and Development," the CNVLD is recognized as the nation's leading and only international standard sporting competition with a volleyball league modeled on structures and promotions of the Australian Football League, along with the recent development of a national racing wheelchair program and encouraging corporate sector social responsibility. The exhibit will show how CNVLD recognizes the unique ability and power of team sports programs to assist the physical, physiological and socioeconomic well-being of disabled Cambodians and the landmine survivors of Cambodia, with a positive impact within many key developmental areas.

Self-Defense for Disabled Women and Girls or Men and Boys, Netherlands

Lydia la Rivière-Zijdel, International Training Advice & Research (ITAR), wheelchair martial artist and self-defense teacher

The purpose of this self-defense exhibit is to show the participants their abilities and to increase their self-esteem and empowerment. Experiencing what you can do instead of what you cannot do in a safe and respectful environment is an essential ingredient for the empowering effect of self-defense. Self-defense is not only an instrument to learn how to prevent becoming a victim of discrimination and violence, but it is a lesson for life to understand more about one's own abilities despite disabilities. As it is suitable for women and girls (or men and boys) with all kinds of disabilities it increases for many disabled people the chance to become active in sport. Self-defense, instructed by qualified teachers, supports the paradigm shift from a medical model to a social model, including a gender-specific approach (separate courses for girls and women or boys and men to enable working in a gender sensitive surrounding).

MOVE Program, Austria

Claudia Penn, Elisabeth Ringer-Neumann, Christian Berndorfer, MOVE Regional Center of Excellence

This exhibit will demonstrate a Pacer and a Dynamic Stander from Rifton, and display photos with children using this equipment in sporting activity. It will show the big variety in using this equipment with different children, and how it can help them taking part in sport. With MOVE children can realize their own sport goals, even if they are not able to bear their own weight. The equipment gives them the support that is necessary to succeed.

Sports as a Means to Foster Inclusion and Well-Being of People with Disabilities Goli Hashemi, International Centre for Disability and Rehabilitation, University of Toronto, Canada

Sport is a cultural phenomenon and an integral part of society. Participation in sport and recreation is considered vital for socio-cultural integration and equity. This exhibit will present an overview of the evidence related to the benefits of sports and physical activity for people with disabilities (PWD) based on a comprehensive review of the literature. Recommendations are made to address identified gaps in the area of sport and disability and to facilitate the safe use of sports and physical activity in increasing health, well-being, and inclusion of PWD.

The European Movement toward Inclusive Physical Activity for Children and Youngsters with Disabilities

Herman Van Coppenolle, Erasmus Program, Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Belgium

In this project, a group of representatives from 17 European countries strived towards a common goal – to endorse the full inclusion and participation of children and youngsters with a disability into sport, leisure, and physical activity. They created an educational kit and promotional CD-ROM called “Count Me In” to endorse the full inclusion and participation of children and youngsters with a disability into sport, leisure and physical activity. The user can find the basic information on the concepts of Adapted Physical Activity (APA) and inclusion. As an additional motivational tool, a series of examples of good practice are illustrated in the final chapter. These examples are also illustrated in the accompanying DVD. Secondly, a promotional CD-ROM was created to stimulate children with a disability to take part in physical activity. The CD-ROM consists of eight movie compilations in which a wide range of activities is presented. In each movie, children with all different levels of abilities are presented. The CD-ROM can be explored in 16 different languages.

Leveling the Playing Field: Assistive Technology Solutions, from Low Tech to High Tech, so All Can Participate

Marcie Roth, Executive Director and CEO, National Spinal Cord Injury

This exhibit will showcase examples of assistive technology designed to facilitate participation in sport, recreation and cultural activities. Examples will span from simple to sophisticated, with a common theme of achieving meaningful participation for people with functional limitations that would otherwise exclude them from their preferred sport, recreation, or cultural activities. Resources for locating assistive technology and creative problem-solving examples from low tech to high tech will also be shared.

Horseback Riding as Therapy, Sport, and Leisure for Persons with Disabilities: Good and Bad Practices

Miguel A. Verdugo, INICO, University of Salamanca, Spain

If safety measures, professionals' training, and praxis are appropriate, horseback riding does not imply for persons with disabilities more risk than other adapted sports. In this way, horseback riding as a sport and leisure activity becomes much more accessible for persons with disabilities or special needs, as well as an excellent support therapy or activity for other types of treatments (i.e., physiotherapy, psychotherapy, behavior modification, pedagogy, etc.). This exhibit will inform participants about the good and bad practices in horseback riding as therapy or sport for persons with disabilities. This includes the ways in which equine-assisted therapy and activities must be developed according to the objectives of other treatments provided currently to the rider. It will include some horseback riding session examples, and describe the good practices necessary to guarantee a gratifying, safe, and beneficial experience for the handicapped rider.

Nike and Athletes with Disabilities, United States Sarah Reinertsen, Nike Athlete

This exhibit will present Nike's efforts and activities to promote and include athletes with disabilities. The exhibit will address Nike's Let Me Play campaign as well as other initiatives of Nike featuring athletes with disabilities. The exhibit will highlight Sarah Reinertsen's role as a Nike athlete.

Sport in Post-Disaster Intervention, Germany Vincent Chew, International Council of Sport Science and Physical Education (ICSSPE)

ICSSPE hosted its first international training seminar on Sport in Post-Disaster Intervention in November 2007. This seminar was the first of its kind, bringing together experts from diverse fields covering many professional disciplines including disaster management, sport and physical education, development, social work, and psychology. Many organizations provide training in disaster preparedness and response; however, this is the first initiative to train professionals in the implementation of sport and physical activity programs in the post-disaster setting. This initiative has grown from recent research and program development that builds on the current international focus on the use of sport for development and peace and is expanding the scope of sport and physical activity specifically to building individual and community capacities following natural and man-made disasters. To supplement the theoretical and practical information presented during the workshop sessions, a handbook on Sport and Physical Activity in Post-Disaster Intervention was also provided to participants to use as a reference guide in the field. ICSSPE plans to host its second international training seminar on Sport in Post-Disaster Intervention in November 2008.

The Garden of Senses: A 3.5-hectare park with Historical XV Palace, Fully-Adopted for People with Different Kinds of Disabilities, Poland Jolanta Budny, President, BBS DESIGN, Pomeranian Science and Technology Park

Jolanta Budny is a European expert in the accessibility field, involved in many research activities and projects on the adaptation of environment for people with a wide range of disabilities. She is a director representing Poland in the European Institute for Design and Disability, a member of the Steering Committee "Warsaw without Barriers," and author of "Universal Design," "Build for All," and "Design for All" – guides for architects and the building industry in accordance with a user-friendly environment. As a practicing architect, Jolanta creates many unusual designs which can be called "user friendly" or "design without barriers." In this exhibit, Jolanta will introduce a practical example of one of these designs – the Garden of Senses, a 3.5h park with a historical XV Palace, fully adopted for people with different kind of disabilities. The aim of this design is to promote social inclusion and acceptance of people's differences, and to show how people with limited abilities perceive our world.

Dear Mrs. INSERT, / Your Excellency, Your Highness,

It is my great pleasure to invite you to attend the Fourth Annual International Forum on Children with Special Needs in Doha, Qatar. This year's event, entitled "Achieving Independence", will take place at the Shafallah Center from April 20th to 22nd.

The luminary wife to the Amir of Qatar, Her Highness Sheikha Mozah Bint Nasser Al-Missned first conceived of hosting an international Forum at the Shafallah Center in 2006 and since then this event has increased in relevance and reach, each year attracting the world's leading thinkers and advocates for the disability movement. This unique, global event is the premiere gathering of its kind, and for 2009 we will explore how persons living with disabilities can overcome the factors that perpetuate their lives; marginalization, lack of access to education and unfair labor practices.

I hope that you will be able to join us in Doha this April. Please RSVP directly to our colleagues at Brown Lloyd James by phone at +1 212 486 7070 or via email to [REDACTED] should you have any questions and to confirm your attendance.

Sincerely,

Mr. Hassan Ali Bin Ali
Centre Chairman

INSERT ADDRESS

INSERT DATE

Dear INSERT,

It is my pleasure to extend the following invitation to you to join us as keynote speaker at the 4th Annual International Shafallah Forum in Doha, Qatar from April 20th – April 22nd, 2009. The Forum is attended annually by the leading disability advocates in the world, First Ladies and noted dignitaries from many countries, field experts and academics. Previous years speakers have included Cherie Blair, wife of former British Prime Minister Tony Blair and Sir Philip Craven, President of the International Paralympic Committee.

The 4th Annual International Forum "Achieving Independence", hosted by the Shafallah Center for Children with Special Needs, will explore how to overcome factors that perpetuate disability marginalization, including widespread poverty due to lack of access to education, opportunity, and unfair labor practices.

As you know, disability and poverty form a vicious cycle where disability can lead to poverty and poverty can beget conditions leading to disability. For three years, delegates have witnessed Shafallah's enormous advances and success and have strained to replicate these best practices. In developing countries, this can be difficult, but not impossible. Through education, poverty reduction strategies such as micro-finance and collaborative partnerships with the corporate sector, individuals and organizations can overcome fiscal obstacles to become self-sustaining, contributing members of society.

This theme will highlight Shafallah's role as a leading institution in education and vocational training and invite prominent thinkers of the global sector of economics, international policy, banking, and activists to visit Qatar and elevate poverty-reduction strategies to the top echelons of global progress. Our vision is to promote independence through universal access to education, inclusive societies, innovative technologies, and poverty-reduction strategies – including micro-enterprise and encouragement of the corporate sector to value and include the disabled in the workforce.

Sincerely,

Mr. Hassan Ali Bin Ali
Chairman, Shafallah Center for Children with Special Needs

Dear Delegate,

Mr. Hassan Ali Bin Ali

Under the patronage of Her Highness Sheikha Mozah Bint Nasser Al-Missned the Shafallah Center for Children with Special Needs will host its Fourth Annual International Forum, in Doha, on April 20 – 22, 2009.

It is with great pleasure that I invite you to attend this Forum which is entitled Achieving Independence which will gather together top educators, policymakers, organization leaders and others for a spirited discussion on strategies to inspire individuals with disabilities to achieve maximum independence, from a global perspective. The road toward self-actualization could be as basic as the ability to make personal choices or as complex as composing an opera or anywhere in between. Progress requires a dedicated commitment from all sectors of society. The achievement of independence for people with disabilities is a test of the very tenets of our democracy, law and humanity.

The Shafallah Center is a unique facility treating and teaching from birth, children who have learning or physical disabilities with state-of-the-art technologies, cutting-edge therapies and first-class faculty and counselors. Part of the program of this year's Forum will be the opportunity for delegates to attend workshops staged by various departments of the Shafallah Center to showcase their work.

Participation in the Forum is complimentary and by invitation only. I hope that you will join me, your peers, and friends this April in Doha and participate in this important event committed to raising international awareness for people with disabilities.

The Shafallah Center

The Shafallah Center for Children with Special Needs was established at the behest of Her Highness Sheikha Mozah Bint Nasser Al-Missned, to meet the demands of the Qatari society to establish a center that provides comprehensive services to children with special needs. The center is a non-profit, private facility providing diagnosis, evaluation, training, and development services for children with all forms of intellectual, learning and developmental disabilities throughout the lifespan.

Educational and related services are provided by a highly qualified transdisciplinary team of specialists. Areas of expertise include special education, rehabilitation, cognitive assessment, research, social work, child and adolescent psychiatry, pediatrics, behavior analysis, counseling, music therapy, occupational therapy, physical therapy, and speech and language pathology. Part of the work of the Center is the Shafallah Medical Genetics Center which is a state-of-the-art genetics center dedicated to the welfare of children with special health-care and educational needs and their families in the State of Qatar. The center provides high quality medical genetics services, professional and community-based education and harbors an active research enterprise all of which serves as a model for comprehensive and integrated genetic health-care services.

Objectives

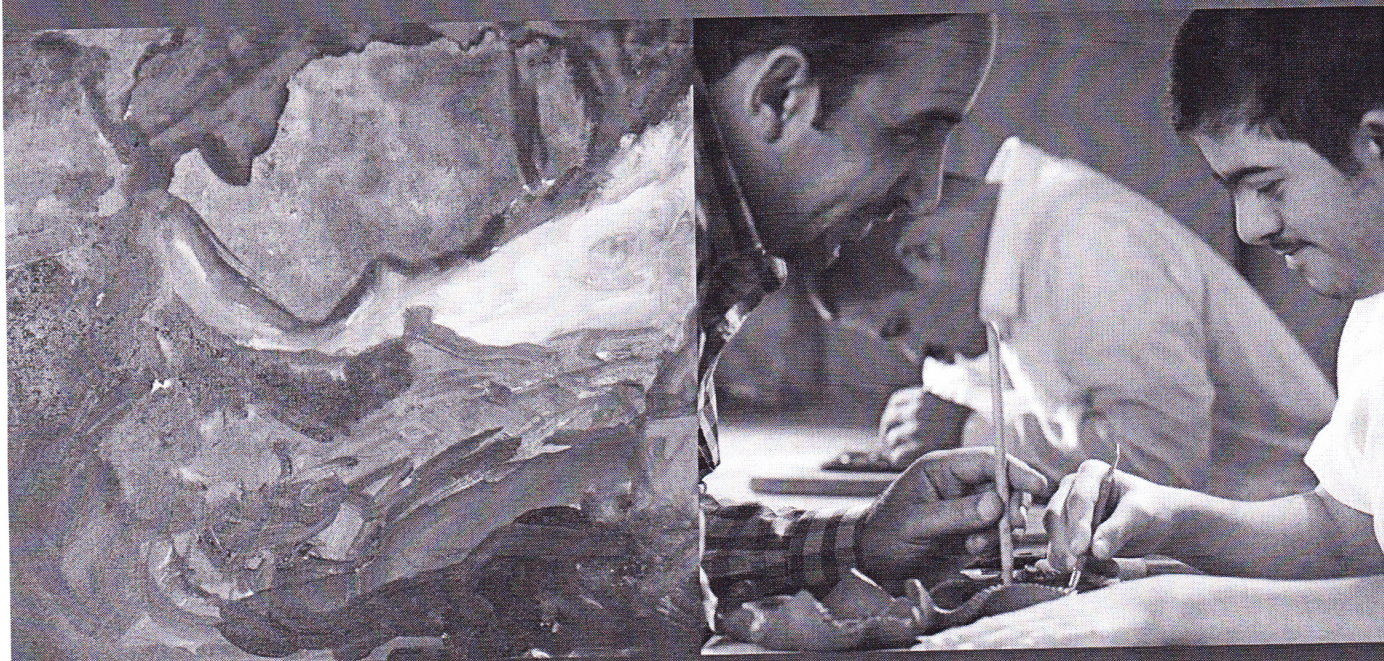

To provide comprehensive educational, instructional, rehabilitative, social, vocational, and recreational services for children with special needs.

To provide support and family counseling services to families of children with special needs, including individual and group therapy.

To provide community awareness on dealing with children with special needs, as well as fostering acceptance and understanding of the nature of disabilities.

To provide training opportunities through the Shafallah Center and establishing a national entity specializing in the field of children with special needs.

To serve as an advocate for public policy and legislative support of appropriate educational and vocational programs for children with special needs.

FOURTH ANNUAL INTERNATIONAL FORUM
ON CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

Welcome letter from the Chairman

It is with pleasure that I invite you to a special event to raise international awareness for people with disabilities at our first-rate educational facility in Doha, Qatar: the Shafallah Center for Children with Special Needs. The Shafallah Center is a unique facility in the Arab and Muslim world, treating and teaching from birth children who have learning or physical disabilities with state-of-the-art technologies, cutting-edge therapies and first-class faculty and counselors.

Shafallah will host, under the patronage of Her Highness Sheikha Mozah Bint Nasser Bin Abdullah Al-Missned, its Fourth Annual International Forum on Children with Special Needs, in Doha, April 20 – 22, 2009. The Forum will gather top educators, policymakers, organization leaders, and others for a broad and provocative discussion on the role sport and ability plays in the lives of people with disabilities, from a global perspective. One of the objectives for the Forum is to examine how the promotion of these themes can be expanded to reach all members of our globally aware society and how recreation, sport and cultural activities promote global unity, social inclusion, skill acquisition, and friendships.

Participation in the Forum is complimentary and by invitation only. I hope that you will join me, your peers, and friends this April in Doha, and participate in this important event and committee on raising international awareness for people with disabilities. Please visit our website to find details on the 2009 Shafallah Forum at www.shafallahforum2009.org.

Sincerely,

Hassan Ali Bin Ali

Chairman of the Shafallah Center for Children with Special Needs

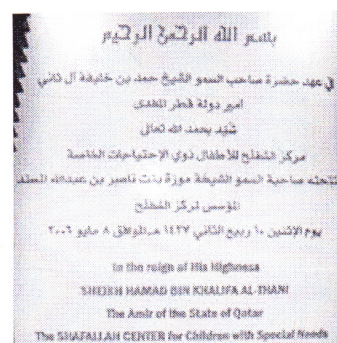

About the Center

FOURTH ANNUAL INTERNATIONAL FORUM ON CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

The Shafallah Center for Children with Special Needs is a center of excellence that provides comprehensive services to individuals with developmental and learning challenges, their families, and the community. Shafallah was established at the behest of Her Highness Sheikha Mozah Bint Nasser Bin Abdullah Al-Missned, wife of His Highness the Emir of Qatar, to meet the demands of the Qatari society to establish a center that provides comprehensive services to children with special needs. The center is a non-profit, private facility providing diagnosis, evaluation, training, and development services for children with all forms of disabilities ages 3 to 21 years of age.

Educational and related services are provided by a highly qualified trans-disciplinary team of specialists. Areas of expertise include special education, rehabilitation, cognitive assessment, social work, child and adolescent psychiatry, pediatrics, behavior analysis, counseling, music therapy, occupational therapy, physical therapy, and speech and language pathology.

"Shafallah" is the Arabic name for the exquisite flower of the caper plant, a small shrub native to the Mediterranean area and bountiful in Qatar. Capers are beautiful pink and white flowers with immature, unopened buds. As with the shafallah flower, the Shafallah Center combines usefulness with the beauty of its special children to encourage their growth and development.

THE SHAFALLAH CENTER HAS FIVE MAIN GOALS AND OBJECTIVES:

- 1 To provide comprehensive educational, instructional, rehabilitative, social, vocational, and recreational services for children with special needs.
- 2 To provide support and family counseling services to families of children with special needs, including individual and group therapy.
- 3 To provide community awareness on dealing with children with special needs, as well as fostering acceptance and understanding of the nature of disabilities.
- 4 To provide training opportunities through the Shafallah Center and establishing a national entity specializing in the field of children with special needs.
- 5 To serve as an advocate for public policy and legislative support of appropriate educational and vocational programs for children with special needs.

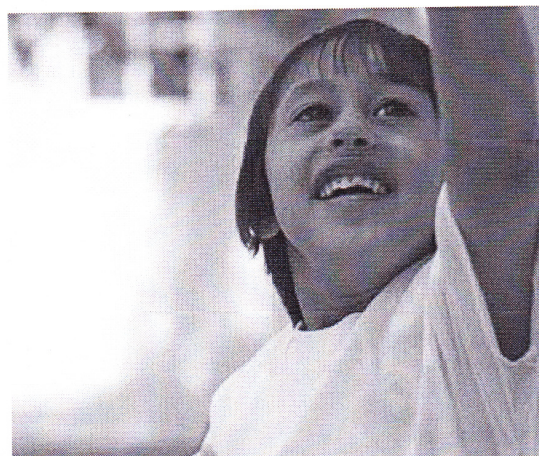

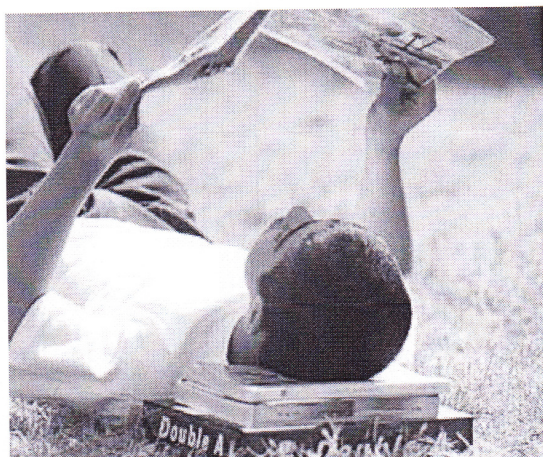

For additional information on the Shafallah Center, please see <http://www.shafallah.org.qa>.

FOURTH ANNUAL INTERNATIONAL FORUM ON CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

About the Forum

April 20 - 22, 2009

Doha, Qatar

The success of the 2006, 2007 and 2008 Shafallah International Forums has helped establish the Center as a world-class facility, and furthered Qatar's reputation as a global advocate for the rights of children with special needs. These events have helped advance crucial debates from awareness to research, and have convened groups of the most prominent thinkers and practitioners in the world.

The topic of the Fourth Annual International Forum will be Achieving Independence.

According to the World Bank, persons with disabilities are considered the poorest and most underserved marginalized population in the world. The 4th Annual Shafallah Forum will encourage world leaders and the disability community to work together in overcoming the factors that perpetuate disability marginalization, including widespread poverty due to lack of access to education, opportunity, and unfair labor practices. The Forum will address poverty-reduction through universal access to education, micro-enterprise, and encouragement of the corporate sector to value and include the disabled in the workforce.

Disability and poverty form a vicious cycle whereas disability leads to poverty and poverty begets conditions leading to disability. For three years, participants have witnessed Shafallah's enormous advances and success and have strained to replicate these best practices. In developing countries, this can be difficult, but not impossible. Through education, poverty reduction strategies such as micro-finance and collaborative partnerships with the corporate sector, individuals and organizations can overcome fiscal obstacles to become self-sustaining contributing members of society.

'... disabled people are also more likely than other people to live in grinding poverty. More than 1.3 billion people worldwide struggle to exist on less than [US]$1 a day, and the disabled in their countries live at the bottom of the pile.' James D. Wolfensohn, former president of the World Bank, 2002

A detailed schedule of the program will be posted online at www.shafallahforum2009.org.

About Doha

FOURTH ANNUAL INTERNATIONAL FORUM ON CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

Doha, the capital of Qatar, is commonly referred to as the "City of Balance." Qatari citizens have surpassed Luxembourg as having the highest per capita income in the world, yet they keep their traditions and culture close to their heart. Located on the east coast of Qatar in the heart of the Gulf, Doha is the major commercial center of the country, and holds the main port. Edged on the east by Corniche Bay, it is quickly earning a global reputation for excellence in hosting major events. In 2006 they hosted the Asian Games and opened their state of the art Khalifa International Stadium. After holding the first Forbes CEO Middle East Conference in 2007, Doha will host three Forbes conferences in 2009.

His Highness the Emir and his wife, Her Highness Sheikha Mozah Bint Nasser Bin Abdullah Al-Missned, have established both the Shafallah Center for Children with Special Needs and Education City, a 2,500-acre campus which hosts branches of some of the world's leading universities including Georgetown University, Weill Medical College of Cornell, Virginia Commonwealth, Texas A&M, and Carnegie Mellon. Qatar's attraction to visitors lies in its aggressive commercial, cultural, and political initiatives; its favorable business climate; and its wide regard for reform-minded leadership and friendly relations with countries around the globe.
